

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—In the letter describing the advantage of the Camaroon mountains as a convict station, and inserted in your issue of Wednesday last, my caco-graphy has been sufficient to confuse the sense.

Mount Henry lies 1·50 (not 150) miles from the landing place at Ambrises Bay, and the giant hum-bug, the Zambesi river, has nothing to do with the south-western portion of the African continent.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

RICHARD F. BURTON, F.R.G.S.
